5 Things For Carry-On Travelers

BY JASON UBAY

iPod Touch

A mere two months after releasing the iPhone, Apple unleashed the iPod Touch, basically an iPhone without the phone. The latest addition to the iPod line, the Touch utilizes a multitouch interface on a 3.5-inch widescreen display. The built-in Wi-Fi can let users surf the Internet via Safari, watch videos via YouTube, and download music via iTunes. Apple.com, $299

Eagle Creek Earplanes

Nalgene Travel Kit

The Transportation Security Administration's 3-1-1 carry-on rule (no more than 3 ounces of liquid in one 1-quart zip-top clear plastic bag) has caused many to toss a perfectly good bottle of shampoo. This Nalgene color-coded kit comes with three 2-ounce containers, one 1-ounce container and one half-ounce container. Nalgene-outdoor.com, $8

Zippo

After collecting nearly 12 million surrendered lighters in 2006, the TSA lifted its ban on common lighters, as of Aug. 4. Still banned are butane-fueled torch lighters, commonly used for pipes and cigars. Allowed are propane lighters, including the stylish Zippo 1941 Replica® HP Sterling Silver. ### Translator

Going to a foreign land and forgot all your high school French? The Lingo Voyager 3 language translator interprets 20 languages from Japanese to Spanish and can translate 400,000 words and 46,000 phrases. You just type in a word or phrase and language and the Voyager 3 will say it aloud for you, so you don't have to agonize over pronunciation.
